STUDY VISITS TO GET AN INSIDER VIEW OF TOKYO’S VIBRANT ARTS & CULTURAL SCENE

After the Academy, the International Study Tour programme will continue with three days of Study Visits. The itinerary will provide an exciting insider experience into Tokyo’s vibrant and fast-paced arts and cultural scene.

There will also be presentations on Tokyo’s cultural programme and 2020 Olympic Games.

Thanks to the study visits, come away with new knowledge and resources on cultural management and cultural policy practice to expand your institution’s education and training programmes, research activities, and projects. Use this valuable time and access to build strong foundations for future collaborations to advance your institution’s international cultural and educational relations.

TIMELY WITH MAJOR EU-JAPAN CULTURE & EDUCATION POLICY DEVELOPMENTS

The Academy and Study Visits of the International Study Tour are perfectly timely with the recent European policy development in culture and education. On 6 July 2018, Tibor Navracsics, European Commissioner for Education, Culture, Youth and Sport, and Yoshimasa Hayashi, Japan Minister of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology (MEXT), met in Budapest to officially launch the EU-Japan Policy dialogue on Education, Culture and Sport.

The meeting was the occasion for Commissioner Navracsics and Minister Hayashi to launch two new Japan-EU joint initiatives. The first is a joint call for proposals to co-finance consortia of excellent European and Japanese universities. The second is a short-term staff-exchange programme for EU and MEXT officials to promote peer-learning and boost cooperation.

Both initiatives emphasize the importance of people to people contacts within the EU-Japan relations, especially within the framework of the Japan-EU Strategic Partnership Agreement (SPA) which is expected to be signed in the near future.

Therefore, ENCATC wants to back up this important EU-Japan policy developments by fostering international mobility of people and ideas, allowing joint projects between universities and/or cultural organisations based Japan and Europe to flourish, as well as giving participants from different world regions to access to current research trends in Japan, and grow their professional network.

Over the course of five days you and your institution will be in direct contact with local universities and cultural operators in Japan in view of establishing long-term cooperation and transnational projects.

Participants are strongly encouraged to bring ideas for cultural projects, joint education programmes, artistic collaborations, and innovative initiatives to create new partnerships, professional ties and friendships.

AIRPORT ACCESS:
Haneda Airport
Flying directly into the metropolis from worldwide destinations has become a reality thanks to the development of Haneda, Tokyo’s city airport. Once a designated domestic hub, Haneda Airport has branched out into international flights meaning that visitors can be in the bustling city of Tokyo within half an hour of leaving the terminal. Check here for the official website Haneda Airport: Official Homepage

Narita Airport
Narita Airport is one of two airports in Tokyo, handling both international and domestic flights.

Narita Airport (NRT), 60 kilometers east of central Tokyo in Chiba Prefecture, handles most of the city’s international flights and some domestic flights. The city’s other airport, Haneda Airport (HND) handles most of the city’s domestic flights as well as a growing number of international flights.

Despite its location outside the city, Narita Airport is within easy reach of central Tokyo by train, bus or taxi.

Kansai International Airport (KIX)
Thought once inconceivable, it is now possible to visit Japan without stepping foot in Tokyo at all. Kansai International Airport (KIX) serves the western area of Japan housing the tourist-magnet city of Kyoto and the urban powerhouse of Osaka, along with the deeply spiritual ground of surrounding prefectures Nara and Wakayama. For more information about the general airport, click here - Kansai International Airport: KIX homepage

CURRENCY:
If you haven’t prepared cash in advance, it’s easy to exchange any currency into Japanese yen once you arrive in the country. All major airports have exchange points in their respective arrivals halls. Even though it is possible to buy train tickets, take taxis, and pay for most other services on offer at the airport with international credit cards, carrying some cash is recommended. You will definitely need some during your stay.

Japan is very much a cash-based society, so keep cash on you. It’s worth noting that ATMs often charge for withdrawals and this charge can vary depending on the time you’re making a withdrawal. Not all ATMs are 24 hours and, in central areas, may run out of cash at times. Be prepared by having enough cash on hand.

Yen (JPY) comes in bills of 1,000 yen, 2,000 yen, 5,000 yen and 10,000 yen, and coins of 1 yen, 5 yen, 10 yen, 50 yen, and 500 yen. Carrying a purse for your Japanese coins throughout your stay in Japan is a good idea since the value of them (and weight in your wallet) soon adds up!

While the 10,000 yen note is equivalent to around 100 dollars, the note is generally accepted even if buying something small. Be aware that not many 2,000 yen notes are in circulation. They are accepted, but can be easily confused with the 1,000 yen note, so make sure you get the correct change after using them.

When entering or leaving Japan, a customs declaration is required if you are carrying more than one million yen in cash, checks, travelers checks, securities etc. Refer to the official website of Japan customs for a comprehensive understanding of any necessary procedures.

ATMs
You can dispense cash from one of the many Japan Post Bank ATMs located nationwide. Most of them are in the Post Offices, but you can also find some at train stations and supermarkets. Service hours differ by ATM. The service is available in English. SevenBank ATMs. Withdraw cash from the nationwide network of ATMs located mainly in the Seven Eleven convenience stores.

The city streets are swarming with taxi cabs ready to open their doors—their automatic doors at that—and transport you to your destination. In local areas, the number of cabs decrease, but can usually be found in front of or nearby the local station.

The inside of the cabs are spotlessly clean and the service (generally) impeccable. Drivers won’t take advantage of their clients and fares are calculated by the running meter. Taxis show various neon signs in their wind screens—usually in Chinese characters but English signs are growing—show whether the taxi is free, taken, on a pick-up or going home. Like most countries around the world, taking a taxi is a more expensive option than public transport, but if you are traveling in a group of three or four, it can sometimes be an economical way to travel.

WIFI & CONNECTIVITY:

Wireless hotspots are popping up all over major cities in Japan, so you should never be too far from a Wi-Fi connection. However, for guaranteed access—especially if you are traveling to more remote areas—Wi-Fi rental is recommended.

Around the city

Visitors to Japan in possession of a foreign phone are able to take advantage of telecom giant Softbank’s Wi-Fi hotspots. Softbank: Free Wi-Fi Passport provides two weeks of free Wi-Fi from 400,000 hotspots nationwide. All you need to do is dial *8180 to receive your password to enable your connection. Look out for the Softbank mark in restaurants, cafes, major train stations, hotels and other locations where you can log on.

Certain coffee chains, fast food restaurants and convenience stores also offer their own free Wi-Fi. Like in many places, you will have to sign up for it. While convenient, the signal on some of these free services can be patchy and slow. Paid hotspots are also available. While many are directed towards Japanese clientele, some English services are available. Docomo Wi-Fi for visitor: Paid Wi-Fi plans and Wi2: Wi-Fi info are a couple of these offering easy access to the internet at a cost.

Pocket Wi-Fi rental
The safest option for guaranteed Wi-Fi from all corners of Japan is to rent a personal hotspot or pocket Wi-Fi device when you arrive in the country. Rental kiosks are located at all major airports, available at competitive rates. Alternatively, make a prior reservation via the internet and have your device delivered straight to your hotel. Research the options from the various providers—G-Call, JAL, ABC, PuPuRu Wi-Fi, Vision Inc—and choose the most appropriate plan for you.

Travel Sim
Another way to stay connected is to rent or buy a sim card. Major airports offer different data plans depending on your need. Brastel and NTT are a couple of options. You can buy a sim card at one of the electronic megastores such as Bic Camera or Yodobashi Camera. A wide range of plans are on offer, so research is recommended to find one that best suits your needs. As a rough guide, you should be able to pick one up a 1GB data plan for 30 days for around 3,000 yen.

Points to note
Big Japanese mobile providers such as Softbank and Docomo will not sell you a sim card for your foreign phone. Your phone must be unlocked to use a sim card.

ABOUT ENCATC & OUR PARTNERS

THE ENCATC INTERNATIONAL STUDY TOUR AND ACADEMY ARE AN INITIATIVE OF

Established in 1992 in Warsaw, ENCATC, the leading European network on cultural management and policy, is an independent organisation and the only European network in the field of cultural management and policy. Currently, it is made up of more than 100 member institutions in over 40 countries. ENCATC is an NGO in official partnership with UNESCO and an observer of the Council of Europe’s Steering Committee for Culture. Our mission is to stimulate the development of cultural management and cultural policy education in Europe and beyond, engaging and responding to new developments in politics, economics, societies, and technology. Our members are higher education institutions, training centres, cultural organisations, consultancies, public authorities, and artists. Since its creation, ENCATC cooperates in many ways with the Council of Europe, UNESCO, European institutions, and the European Cultural Foundation. As results of our internationalisation policy, ENCATC is also a strategic partner of the Asia-Europe Foundation, the Association of Arts Administration Educators in the United States, and the Taiwan Association of Cultural Policy Studies. We believe cultural management and policy education, training, and research have the power to make the cultural sector stronger, resilient, and sustainable in Europe and beyond.

THE ENCATC ACADEMY IS IN PARTNERSHIP WITH

The Institute for Creative and Cultural Entrepreneurship (ICCE) at Goldsmiths, University of London delivers entrepreneurship, cultural management and policy education to the creative and cultural sectors, and supports research into new approaches to business, financial models and management in the Creative Economy. It delivers a range of academic programmes and presents activities and events to promote an environment in which creative and cultural entrepreneurship can flourish. Our approach is to integrate entrepreneurship within the development of creative practices, and to take a creative approach to the development of new businesses and the infrastructure that supports them. ICCE is Goldsmiths’ response to the growing significance of the creative industries and cultural sector in the UK’s economy. Figures have shown that the creative industries account for 9% of the UK’s GDP and a rising part of its export trade and total employment. Business skills, management skills and entrepreneurial skills with a specific understanding of the sector are needed to support its continued growth. Goldsmiths’ reputation as a leading provider of creative education, and its longstanding engagement with cultural practice and analysis, make it the ideal home for ICCE. Engagement with the creative industries and the not-for-profit cultural sector has long existed across many of Goldsmiths’ academic departments and research centres. What makes ICCE different is its interdisciplinarity. Artistic creativity increasingly blurs the old boundaries of subject disciplines such as music, drama, dance, fine art, design, communications, media and technology. ICCE serves as an area for experimentation, where all of these disciplines can come together to learn from each other and to develop new creative alliances. http://www.gold.ac.uk/icce/aboutus/

MEDIA PARTNERS

The Association of Arts Administration Educators (AAAE) is an international organization incorporated as a nonprofit institution within the United States. Its mission is to represent college and university graduate and undergraduate programs in arts administration, encompassing training in the management of visual, performing, literary, media, cultural and arts service organizations. Founded in 1979, the AAAE was created to provide a forum for communication among its members and advocate formal training and high standards of education for arts administrators. The Association, moreover, encourages its members to pursue, publish, present and disseminate research in arts management and administration to strengthen the understanding of arts management issues in the academic and professional fields. Recognition of arts administration as a profession is a recent development. Because formal education was not begun until the mid-1960’s, the profession is still in its adolescence, even as arts institutions are demanding higher levels of sophistication from their administrators. The Association believes that higher education remains the appropriate response to these demands and to the present and future management needs of the arts. Information is available on each member program’s history, purpose, background, administration, degree(s), curriculum and application procedure through this web site.
